

A precision Time of Flight measurement system for the TORCH prototype detector

Supporting figures and references

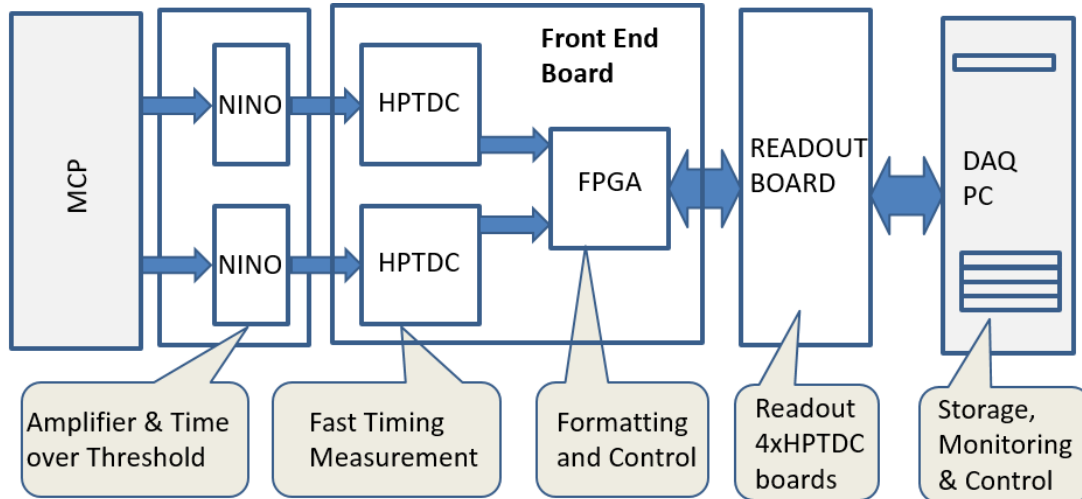

Figure 1 TORCH Data Flow

Figure 2 TORCH Prototype Detector

References:

[1] F. Anghinolfi, et al., NINO: an ultra-fast and low-power front-end amplifier/discriminator ASIC designed for the multigap resistive plate chamber, Nuclear Instrumentation and Methods, A 533 (2004) 183.

- [2] M. Mota, et al., A flexible multi-channel high-resolution Time-to-Digital Converter ASIC, IEEE Nuclear Science Symposium Conference, Rec. 2 (2000) 155.
- [3] R. Gao, et al., Development of TORCH readout electronics for customised MCPs, Journal of Instrumentation., 11 (04) (2016), p. C04012
- [4] T.H. Hancock, et al., Test-beam studies of a small-scale TORCH time-of-flight demonstrator, Nuclear Instruments and Methods in Physics Research Section A: Accelerators, Spectrometers, Detectors and Associated Equipment, 961,(2020)
- [5] Moritz Horstmann, et al., picoTDC: A 3ps Bin Size 64 Channel TDC for HEP Experiments, presented at TWEPP 2019 Topical Workshop on Electronics for Particle Physics, Santiago de Compostela, Spain, September 3, 2019
- [6] R. Ballabriga et al, FastIC: Highly configurable ASIC for Fast Timing applications, https://indico.cern.ch/event/755407/contributions/3191789/attachments/1742393/2819615/FastIC\_picoTDCUsersMeeting\_26\_10\_18.pdf
- [7] P. Moreira et al., The IpGBT: a radiation tolerant ASIC for Data, Timing, Trigger and Control Applications in HL-LHC, presented at TWEPP 2019 Topical Workshop on Electronics for Particle Physics, Santiago de Compostela, Spain, September 3, 2019