Information Use In Information Society

Tuesday 10 October 2006 - Wednesday 11 October 2006

University Library in Bratislava

Scientific Programme

Research and trends in information use present research results investigating relationships of man, technologies and information in information society point to advanced trends in information science, information systems, and information society report on new strategies of human information behavior in various cultural, technological and institutional contexts including relevance of information

Practical systems and services with added value practical systems and services in information institutions, e.g. in libraries, media, cultural organizations, memory institutions aimed at value-added services in the electronic environment digitization of cultural heritage information architecture

Information society: cultural, legal, systems, educational aspects, information literacy social changes regarding the information use in the electronic environment national and culture-specific approaches to information society building

Posters Section

Anything we don't want to say