

Barry Barish

"The International Linear Collider: Opportunities and Challenges"

Through the Global Design Effort and the World Wide Study, the international high energy community is jointly developing a design for the machine, concepts for the detectors and an R&D program to address the technical challenges for the ILC. I will review the status and plans of this ambitious undertaking.