

Abstract:

I describe a number of models and parametrizations attempting to describe soft interaction data, both elastic and diffractive, emanating from measurements at the LHC. I analyze the main features of the leading models and their deficiencies, stressing the advantages of the GLM formalism.