

Abstract:

The lecture will first discuss some principle tricks that are used in particle detector systems. The quantitative design considerations for particle detector systems are then discussed and some examples are given. Finally some examples of detectors for neutrino physics and dark matter searches are shown.