

Getting there and away:

Nikhef

Science Park 105
1098 XG Amsterdam

By train:

Science Park has it's own railway station (5 minutes by foot from Nikhef). It is served by trains from Amsterdam Central Station and from Almere. From Amsterdam Central Station the trains leaves about every 15 minutes (train to Almere). Amsterdam Science Park is then the Second Stop. The trains back to the Central Station leaves also about every 15 minutes.

From Amsterdam airport (Schiphol):

Take the train from the airport railway station to Amsterdam Central station and then the train to Amsterdam Science Park (see above). There is also a direct train.

From the City:

Take any metro line to the Amstel railway station and take bus 40 or take tram 9, get off at the Kruislaan tram stop and from there take bus 40 or walk down the Kruislaan towards and then under the railway tunnel. This takes about 15 minutes.

By Car:

road left and right until after a railroad tunnel. Turn right on the McGillavrylaan. Nikhef entrance will be on your left. You will have to take a parking ticket. You can get an exit card from the organisation.

Public Transport:

There is a new way of paying for the public transport in the Netherlands: The OV-chipkaart. The options are a single use card (3.75€) or an anonymous multi-use card. You can get these in ticket offices in the railway stations and in the AKO bookstore at Schiphol. The card can be charged-up at almost all railway stations. Unfortunately there is a price for the card which is non-refundable (7.50€). For getting on to the bus and tram there is a minimum balance required of 3.50€. For the train this is 20€. For the train it is still possible to buy a normal ticket. The balance can be refunded when you leave, for a fee of 2.50€.
