

brush (is generalisation of the code front_twofnr - see its outline) and is an interactive front-end to help you to automatically generate data sets (called xxx.tran and xxx.fres) for input to the transfer reaction program twofnr and for the code fresco, respectively. The data set identifier (xxx) will be requested when brush run.

Various global optical potential choices are included.