

Beam parameter evolution and luminosity performance

A model of the evolution of the beam parameters during luminosity production at the FCC-hh is presented, taking into account the effect of luminosity burn-off, intrabeam scattering, synchrotron damping, quantum excitation, as well as beam-beam effects. The model is then used to estimate the performance and compare the different running scenarios.