

Contribution ID: 1018

Type: Poster contribution

Performance and Operational Status of Muon Detectors in the Telescope Array Experiment

Thursday, July 30, 2015 3:30 PM (1 hour)

Measurement of shower particles using scintillators at ground level, with different absorber thicknesses, enables detailed studies of the Telescope Array experiment's energy scale and of hadronic interaction models. We designed and constructed two types of such detectors. In this report, we present their performance and operational status.

Collaboration

Telescope Array

Registration number following "ICRC2015-I/"

831

Primary author: NONAKA, Toshiyuki (Institute for Cosmic Ray Research, University of Tokyo)Co-authors: STOKES, Benjamin (University of Utah); ROBERT, Cady (University of Utah); IVANOV, Dmitri (University of Utah); SAGAWA, Hiroyuki (Institute for Cosmic Ray Research); MATTHEWS, John (University of Utah); SAKURAI, Nobuyuki (Nagoya University); TAKEISHI, Ryuji (ICRR Univ. Tokyo); OGIO, Shoichi (Osaka City University)Presenter: NONAKA, Toshiyuki (Institute for Cosmic Ray Research, University of Tokyo)Session Classification: Poster 1 CRTrack Classification: CR-IN