

Contribution ID: 41

Type: not specified

SCREWS - An Architecture For Simulating Errors in Web Servers

Wednesday 5 July 2006 14:00 (30 minutes)

SCREWS is a flexible architecture for simulating errors in web servers, intended for testing of error detection and recovery tools. The flexibility comes from the ability to write “SCREWSlets”, tiny Python scripts which determine whether to send an error, and what kind.

Author: Mr ZADKA, Moshe (B-hive Networks)

Presenter: Mr ZADKA, Moshe (B-hive Networks)

Session Classification: Misfits