

Contribution ID: 240

Type: Poster Presentation

Search for Long-lived particles with the ATLAS detector

Several supersymmetric models predict the production of massive long-lived supersymmetric particles. Such particles, if charged, may be detected through abnormal specific energy loss or long time-of-flight to the calorimeters. The poster presents recent results from searches of long-lived supersymmetric charged particles using proton-proton collisions at a centre of mass energy of 13 TeV with the ATLAS detector.

Experimental Collaboration

ATLAS

Primary author: ROZEN, Yoram (Technion (IL))Presenter: SAITO, Masahiko (University of Tokyo (JP))Session Classification: Poster sessionTrack Classification: Higgs and New Physics