

How much nuclear physics do we need to understand the neutrino-nucleus cross section ?

Tuesday 19 May 2009 10:30 (45 minutes)

Electron scattering experiments have clearly exposed the limits of the shell model description of atomic nuclei. I will discuss the dynamics leading to the appearance of strong correlation effects, and their impact on the nuclear cross sections in the impulse approximation regime.

Author: BENHAR, Omar (INFN Roma)

Presenter: BENHAR, Omar (INFN Roma)

Session Classification: Confronting theory, models & data

Track Classification: Confronting theory, models & data