

Carrier mobility for acoustic phonon scattering in 2D extrinsic graphene

Wednesday, June 8, 2016 2:45 PM (15 minutes)

We study carrier mobility of 2D extrinsic graphene by acoustic phonon scattering as a function of temperature (T) and carrier density (n). We calculate inverse relaxation times (τ) as a function of energy for different temperatures and resistivity (ρ) as a function of temperature for different densities (n).

Primary author: PRATUMMA, anucha

Presenter: PRATUMMA, anucha

Session Classification: Session VIII

Track Classification: Condensed Matter Physics