4. Website

Teacher Programmes

Keep up-to-date with the latest developments in particle physics and related areas, and experience a dynamic, international research environment. CERN offers you the possibility to participate in special programmes for teachers and meet with teaching colleagues from your country or from all over Europe.

The High School Teacher Programme is a comprehensive international course held in English, aimed at teachers who would like to spend the first three weeks of July at CERN. The next session will take place from 5 to 25 July 2015.

The National Teacher Programmes are held in one of the national languages of CERN Member States. These programmes are also open for teachers from other countries (including non-member states) speaking the same language. Teacher programmes for participants from non-member states can also be organized, but are only held in their national language if competent lecturers speaking this language are available. National Teacher Programmes

This programme is delivered in one of the national languages of CERN Member States. It is also open for teachers from other countries (including non-member states) speaking the same language. Teacher programmes for participants from non-member states can also be organized, but are only held in their national language if competent lecturers speaking this language are available. The lecture materials and the archived video recordings of the lectures are a unique resource for all physics teachers from the participating country.

CERN provides all scientific, administrative and technical support for the programme, such as scientific content and provision of national language facilitators, lecturers and guides. Travel and subsistence funds, covering accommodation and meals, are expected to be provided by national authorities or by other sources, e.g. educational foundations.
