A little bit of information about your gift

Screens like this first appeared 3000 years ago in the Zhou Dynasty and were placed behind the Kings throne. Traditionally it is a black wooden frame with white fabric in the centre, symbolizing the King's power. The screen is used to keep off the wind and provide a beautiful environment, and the design has lasted for thousands of years. Today, the screens have practical uses and are decorated with traditional writings, painting and jade jewellery.
