In about 1690, a Chinese trading junk sank off the southern coast of Vietnam, taking with it its voluminous cargo of valuable Ching dynasty porcelain. This cargo was called the Vung Tau cargo after the Vietnamese province off which it was recovered. The 'Vung Tau' porcelain is of the early Chinese Ching (Quing) dynasty. Its cargo intended for the Dutch East India Company (VOC) for distribution in Europe.

It was discovered in mid 1980s and explored in 1990 and brought to Cristie in Amsterdam in April 1992.
