

NICA days 2017

Warsaw, November 6-10, 2017

This conference will bring together scientists, engineers and students interested in heavy ion physics and in measuring equipment for NICA experiments. Our goal is to create a platform for cooperation of experts and young people to explore this exciting scientific and engineering research field.

- M. Gazdzicki, Goethe University (Frankfurt, Germany)
- V. Golovatyuk, JINR (Dubna, Russia)
- V. Kekelidze, JINR (Dubna, Russia)
- A. Kisiel, WUT (Warsaw, Poland)
- R. Lednicky, JINR (Dubna, Russia)
- M. Ławryńczuk, WUT (Warsaw, Poland)
- P. Magierski, WUT (Warsaw, Poland)
- V. A. Matveev, JINR (Dubna, Russia)
- S. Plamowski, WUT (Warsaw, Poland)
- J. Pluta, WUT (Warsaw, Poland)
- A. Sorin, JINR (Dubna, Russia)
- T. Traczyk, WUT (Warsaw, Poland)
- Z. Xu, BNL (Brookhaven, USA)
- A. Zagólski R&M (Wetzikon, Switzerland)
- H. P. Zbroszczyk, WUT (Warsaw, Poland)

- Heavy-Ion Collisions and QCD Phase Diagram at NICA energies
- World experiments and theoretical models related to NICA
- Scientific program of JINR and Laboratory of High Energy Physics
- NICA acceleration and experimental complex
- Physics program of NICA experiments
- New technologies, methods and devices developed for NICA
- Basic equipment for NICA detectors
- Managing system, slow control and Databases
- Data Acquisition Systems, Data Quality and Security
- International collaboration
- Opportunities for juniors

General informations:

NICA (Nuclotron-based Ion Collider fAcility) days 2017 is a scientific and engineering conference associated with the Slow Control Warsaw 2017

A new mega-project NICA is being developed at JINR in Dubna. The project is in advanced stages of realization. Considering that, it is a perfect moment to present its actual state and to find new people from scientific and engineering environment, companies and students for further development and cooperation.
