12:30 am / 01:00 pm - Departure from the town of Ollantaytambo by bus to Moray.

02:30 pm – Arrival at the archaeological center of Moray and visit of this important center known as the "Inca Agricultural Laboratory", consisting of natural gigantic holes, that were used to build terraces around them with their own irrigation aqueducts; what is outstanding is the difference of temperature during the year between the upper part and the bottom of the hole, whose difference can reach 15 Celsius degrees. The biggest hole is 150 meters deep and the terraces are 1.8m tall (on average). The terraces, built over retaining walls filled with fertile soil and irrigated with water by complex systems allowed to grow more than 250 vegetal species. These terraces were used as Inca laboratories to make experiments with their crops.

Guided visit.

15:30 pm - Departure from Moray to the Salineras de Maras (Salt Pans of Maras).

16:00 pm - Arrival at the Salineras de Maras and guided tour through the Maras Peruvian canyon, filled with geometric salt pools that have been harvested since the Inca empire. Today there are about 3,000 pools that are still harvested by the community of local families who control the salt pans, the transport roads to the valley, and generally the entire salt production from the site, which remains much the same as it was when the Inca discovered the site over 1,000 years ago

17: 00 pm - Return to the town of Ollantaytambo with arrival at around 18:00 pm.
