Statistics

CLICdp papers since October 2013 - January 2018:

LCWS'2017

The 2017 International Workshop on Future Linear Colliders (LCWS2017) took place in Strasbourg, October 23-27, 2017.

- one plenary presentation
- 11 contributions to parallel sessions

CLICdp was represented very well!

LCWS'2017 Proceedings

- Only one contribution submitted !?
- Not quite as well represented as expected ...
- Suggestions for New Year resolutions?

Submitting a paper

Procedures for submission given in:

<http://clidp.web.cern.ch/content/hints-and-tips>
including links to other documents

Reviewing is meant to be “light touch” and guidelines revised as required
Please let us know if (when) something is unclear

Collaboration review takes (Annex 4 of MoC):

- 2 weeks for journal paper
- 2 weeks for public notes
- 1 week for conference proceedings

Drafts under review are listed on Twiki:

<https://twiki.cern.ch/twiki/bin/view/CLIC/CLICdpNotesForCollaborationReview>

Please note that additional time (often up to one extra week) is needed for initial review, implementation of changes and final checks. . .

Formatting the paper

Updated templates for CLICdp document style and the proceeding front page (including copyright statement) can be found in gitlab:

https://gitlab.cern.ch/CLICdp/Publications/Templates/
Style/tree/master/CLICdpTemplate

Always check for updates before starting a new paper.

note change of gitlab location!

Plots

Please try to use CLICdp style whenever possible:

https://gitlab.cern.ch/CLICdp/Publications/Templates/
Style/tree/master/CLICdpStyle

Remember to put “CLICdp” (or “CLICdp preliminary”) label in the plots.

Always use vector image formats for papers where available

Role of PubCom

Please let us know if you face any problems with:

- using CLICdp templates or root style (ROOT, pyROOT),
- submission to arXiv,
- getting support/response from conference organisers,
- deciding about the copyright issues.

We are your “support team” and we will try to assist you!

Other authors could have faced the same problem before...

We can make “official” contact to the conference organisers or publishers of the proceedings...

Congratulation to all authors who contributed to record 2017 score!

Many thanks to official paper reviewers
and all CLICdp members contributing to draft reviews
Your comments are very valuable! Do contribute...

Many thanks to colleagues of PubCom

Expecting many new submissions this year

Open access license

- the CDS submissions were not copyright protected as “open access” publications
- with help of CDS support, new solution has been implemented: all public CDS submissions from CLICdp will be covered by CC-BY-4.0 license by default
- the cover page templates have been modified to include the following statement:
©2018 CERN for the benefit of the CLICdp Collaboration.
- the majority of the HEP journals publish under open access.
Still, it is the responsibility of the author to make sure that this is the case and to inform the publications committee in case of the submission to a non open access journal.
