

Separating heavy Higgses using machine learning

Thursday, January 4, 2018 6:00 PM (15 minutes)

We study the prospects for using deep neural networks to distinguish collider signals from heavy and mass degenerate CP-odd and CP-even Higgs bosons. The close overlap in the kinematic features highlights a challenge related to the bias introduced by training data.

Summary

Primary author: STRUMKE, Inga (University of Bergen (NO))

Presenter: STRUMKE, Inga (University of Bergen (NO))

Session Classification: Thursday PM

Track Classification: Particle Physics and Artificial Intelligence