Purpose
Le travail au CERN
c'est....
Un but commun

CERN's people are driven by a shared goal, a single purpose.

They want to achieve the impossible, to do what's never been done before.

Everyone here strives to be the best they can be, true specialists and industry "firsts" are created regularly – not just in the world of physics.

Challenge

Le travail au CERN
c'est....
Relever les défis

Unravelling the mysteries of the universe: it's a big task. And that's one of the reasons that experts come to CERN – to test themselves, push their abilities and help create history with groundbreaking discoveries.

But this is not just about physics. The engineering and technical skills needed to make the experiments succeed are as world-class as the science behind them. If you want to help answer the world's toughest questions, this is the place to do it.

Working at

Integrity

Le travail au CERN
c'est....
L'intégrité

This is a word that is included in the CERN values, but it's something that can be claimed by any number of organisations, so what does it actually mean here?

Respect isn't handed out automatically at CERN – it's earned.

But, because of the nature of the work, people act with integrity. People are driven by scientific discovery. Their motivations are pure. They trust and are trusted.

Working at CERN is about...
Collaboration
Le travail au CERN
c'est....
La collaboration

CERN is an employer, a university and a state: a whole community working towards a shared goal – scientific discovery. This creates a collaborative world. Seniors work with graduates. Physicists need engineers. Countries forget politics and collaborate to achieve. And knowledge – CERN's main commodity – is shared throughout CERN, its member states and the rest of the world.

Working at

Imagination
Le travail au CERN
c'est....
L'imagination

This is work without boundaries.

People here are realising the impossible. Pushing what is known and accepted with the courage to ask, “what if?” They have the freedom to think differently, to imagine, and to find improbable solutions to problems that have never been asked before.

They are free to take chances, to challenge ideas and to enjoy unrestrictive working practices.
