Code of Conduct

Conduct

SRR, Chapter 1, Section 3: Conduct

“Members of the personnel shall conduct themselves with due regard to the interests and proper functioning of the Organization.

Members of the personnel shall refrain from any act or activity:

- a) which is incompatible with their functions, or
- b) which would be morally or materially prejudicial to the Organization.

Members of the personnel shall exercise at all times the reserve and tact incumbent upon them by virtue of their international status...”

Code of Conduct

What does it address and to whom does it apply?

- ❖ Common standards of professional behaviour based on CERN values (vs. Code of Ethics)
- ❖ Guide in helping us, as CERN contributors, to understand how to conduct ourselves, treat others and expect to be treated.
- ❖ Applicable to all CERN contributors, i.e. not only staff members but also the user community, subcontractors, consultants...

What form does it have in practice?

- ❖ Short (4 pages) and intentionally so, organized around the five CERN values
- ❖ Extensive FAQ list available to increase understanding of how the Code applies to practical situations

It's all about respect

Code of Conduct

The CERN Code of Conduct: it's all about respect

It's about common basic standards of behavior to help us understand how to conduct ourselves, treat others and expect to be treated in accordance with the CERN values

How the Code came about:

As part of the Human Resources Strategy and global reflection on CERN values and common standards of behavior and also in response to requests from various internal bodies, the Code of Conduct has been developed further to an extensive collaboration and consultation process during 2009 and 2010. CERN's first Code of Conduct is applicable from 1 July 2010.

What the Code is:

The Code is intended as a guide in helping us, as CERN contributors, to understand how to conduct ourselves, treat others and expect to be treated. It is based around the five core values of the Organization. We should all become familiar with it and try to incorporate it into our daily life at CERN.

Why we need a Code:

To enhance transparency, objectivity and clarity, to prepare ourselves for increased public scrutiny and to address recurrent issues in a

Social Media Guidelines

2014/03/17 by ITSRRM

"Social Media", i.e. Twitter & Facebook, public blogs & interactive forums, and the public commenting functions of web-sites, are widely used today for sharing information, outreach and contact with the world. While you can make use of Social Media for many different purposes, the lines between private and public, personal and professional are blurred. Some Guidelines are provided below on how best to use Social Media, for your benefit and that of the Organization.

CERN's values and Code of Conduct underpin these Guidelines, which apply to all CERN contributors (i.e. staff members, fellows, apprentices, associates, users or students), who comment professionally or privately about their activities at CERN using Social Media.

Post...

- Responsibly: your online content stays public and can be republished by others. Make sure you are comfortable with what you are posting before you put it online;
- Correctly: posts claiming to be news or information should be based on facts. Fact check your statements before posting and don't be fooled by the abundance of opinion-based "facts" on the web, when sharing or reposting;
- Clearly: try to avoid scientific jargon or slang when addressing a wide audience;
- Reasonably: show your passion, but avoid overposting;
- As yourself: be honest about your identity, expertise and role at CERN. Always point out that you post in your personal capacity, and your statements will remain personal and cannot be regarded as representing CERN's official position. If necessary add an appropriate disclaimer.

Integrity

VALUE → INTERNAL POLICY

Conflict of Interest Policy:

Private interests ≠ CERN's interests

- Recognise situations and avoid (e.g. gifts)
- If unavoidable, disclose
- In case of doubt, discuss with hierarchy

Anti-Fraud Policy:

Fraud = any act or omission to deceive others, or to achieve a gain resulting in a loss of funds or reputation for CERN

Zero tolerance approach

Investigation procedures, led by Internal Audit

- Report in good faith suspicions of fraud
