World Wide Web Initiative

The World Wide Web is the system of interlinked, accessible information, an extension of human knowledge. It is an initiative started in 1989, and will really begin to take a form in 1991, with a lot of projects and experiments. It is an open and collaborative effort of scientists and engineers from physics to biology, chemistry, astronomy to...

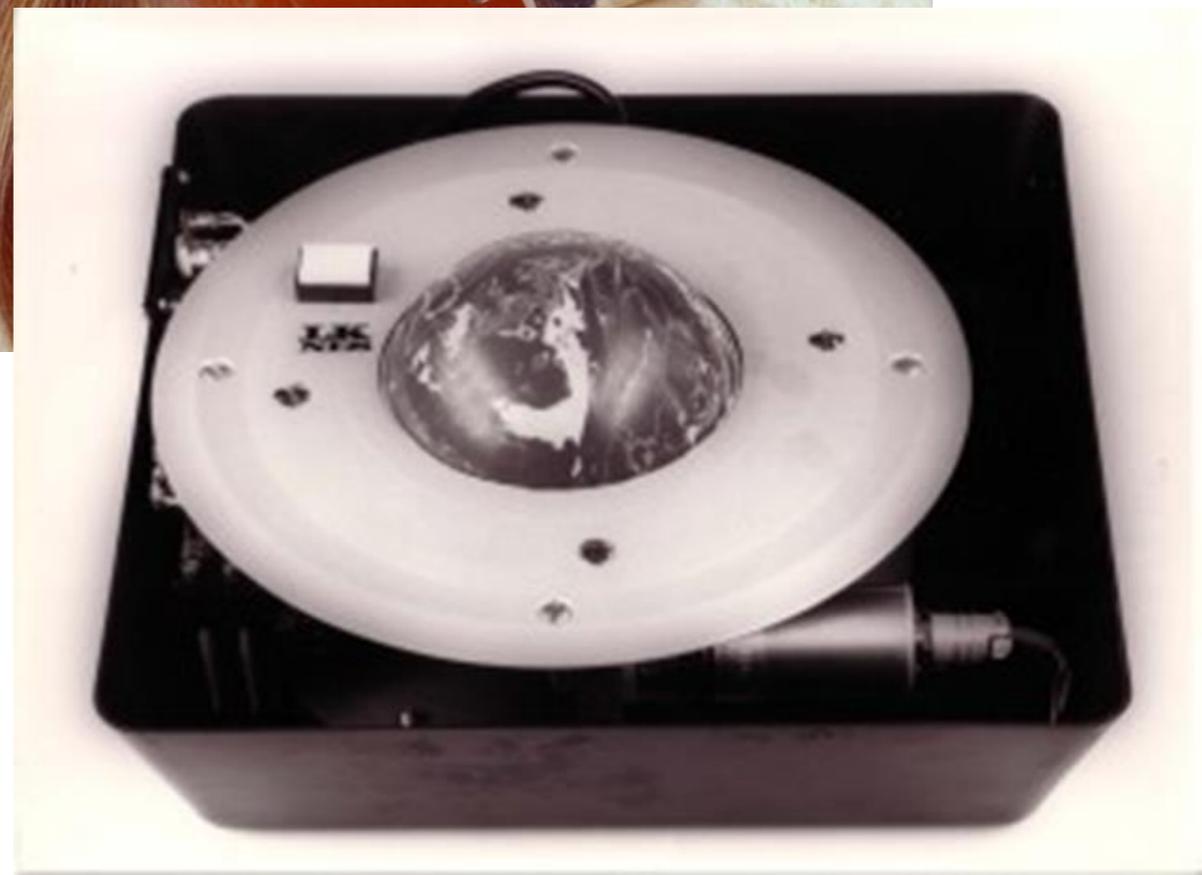

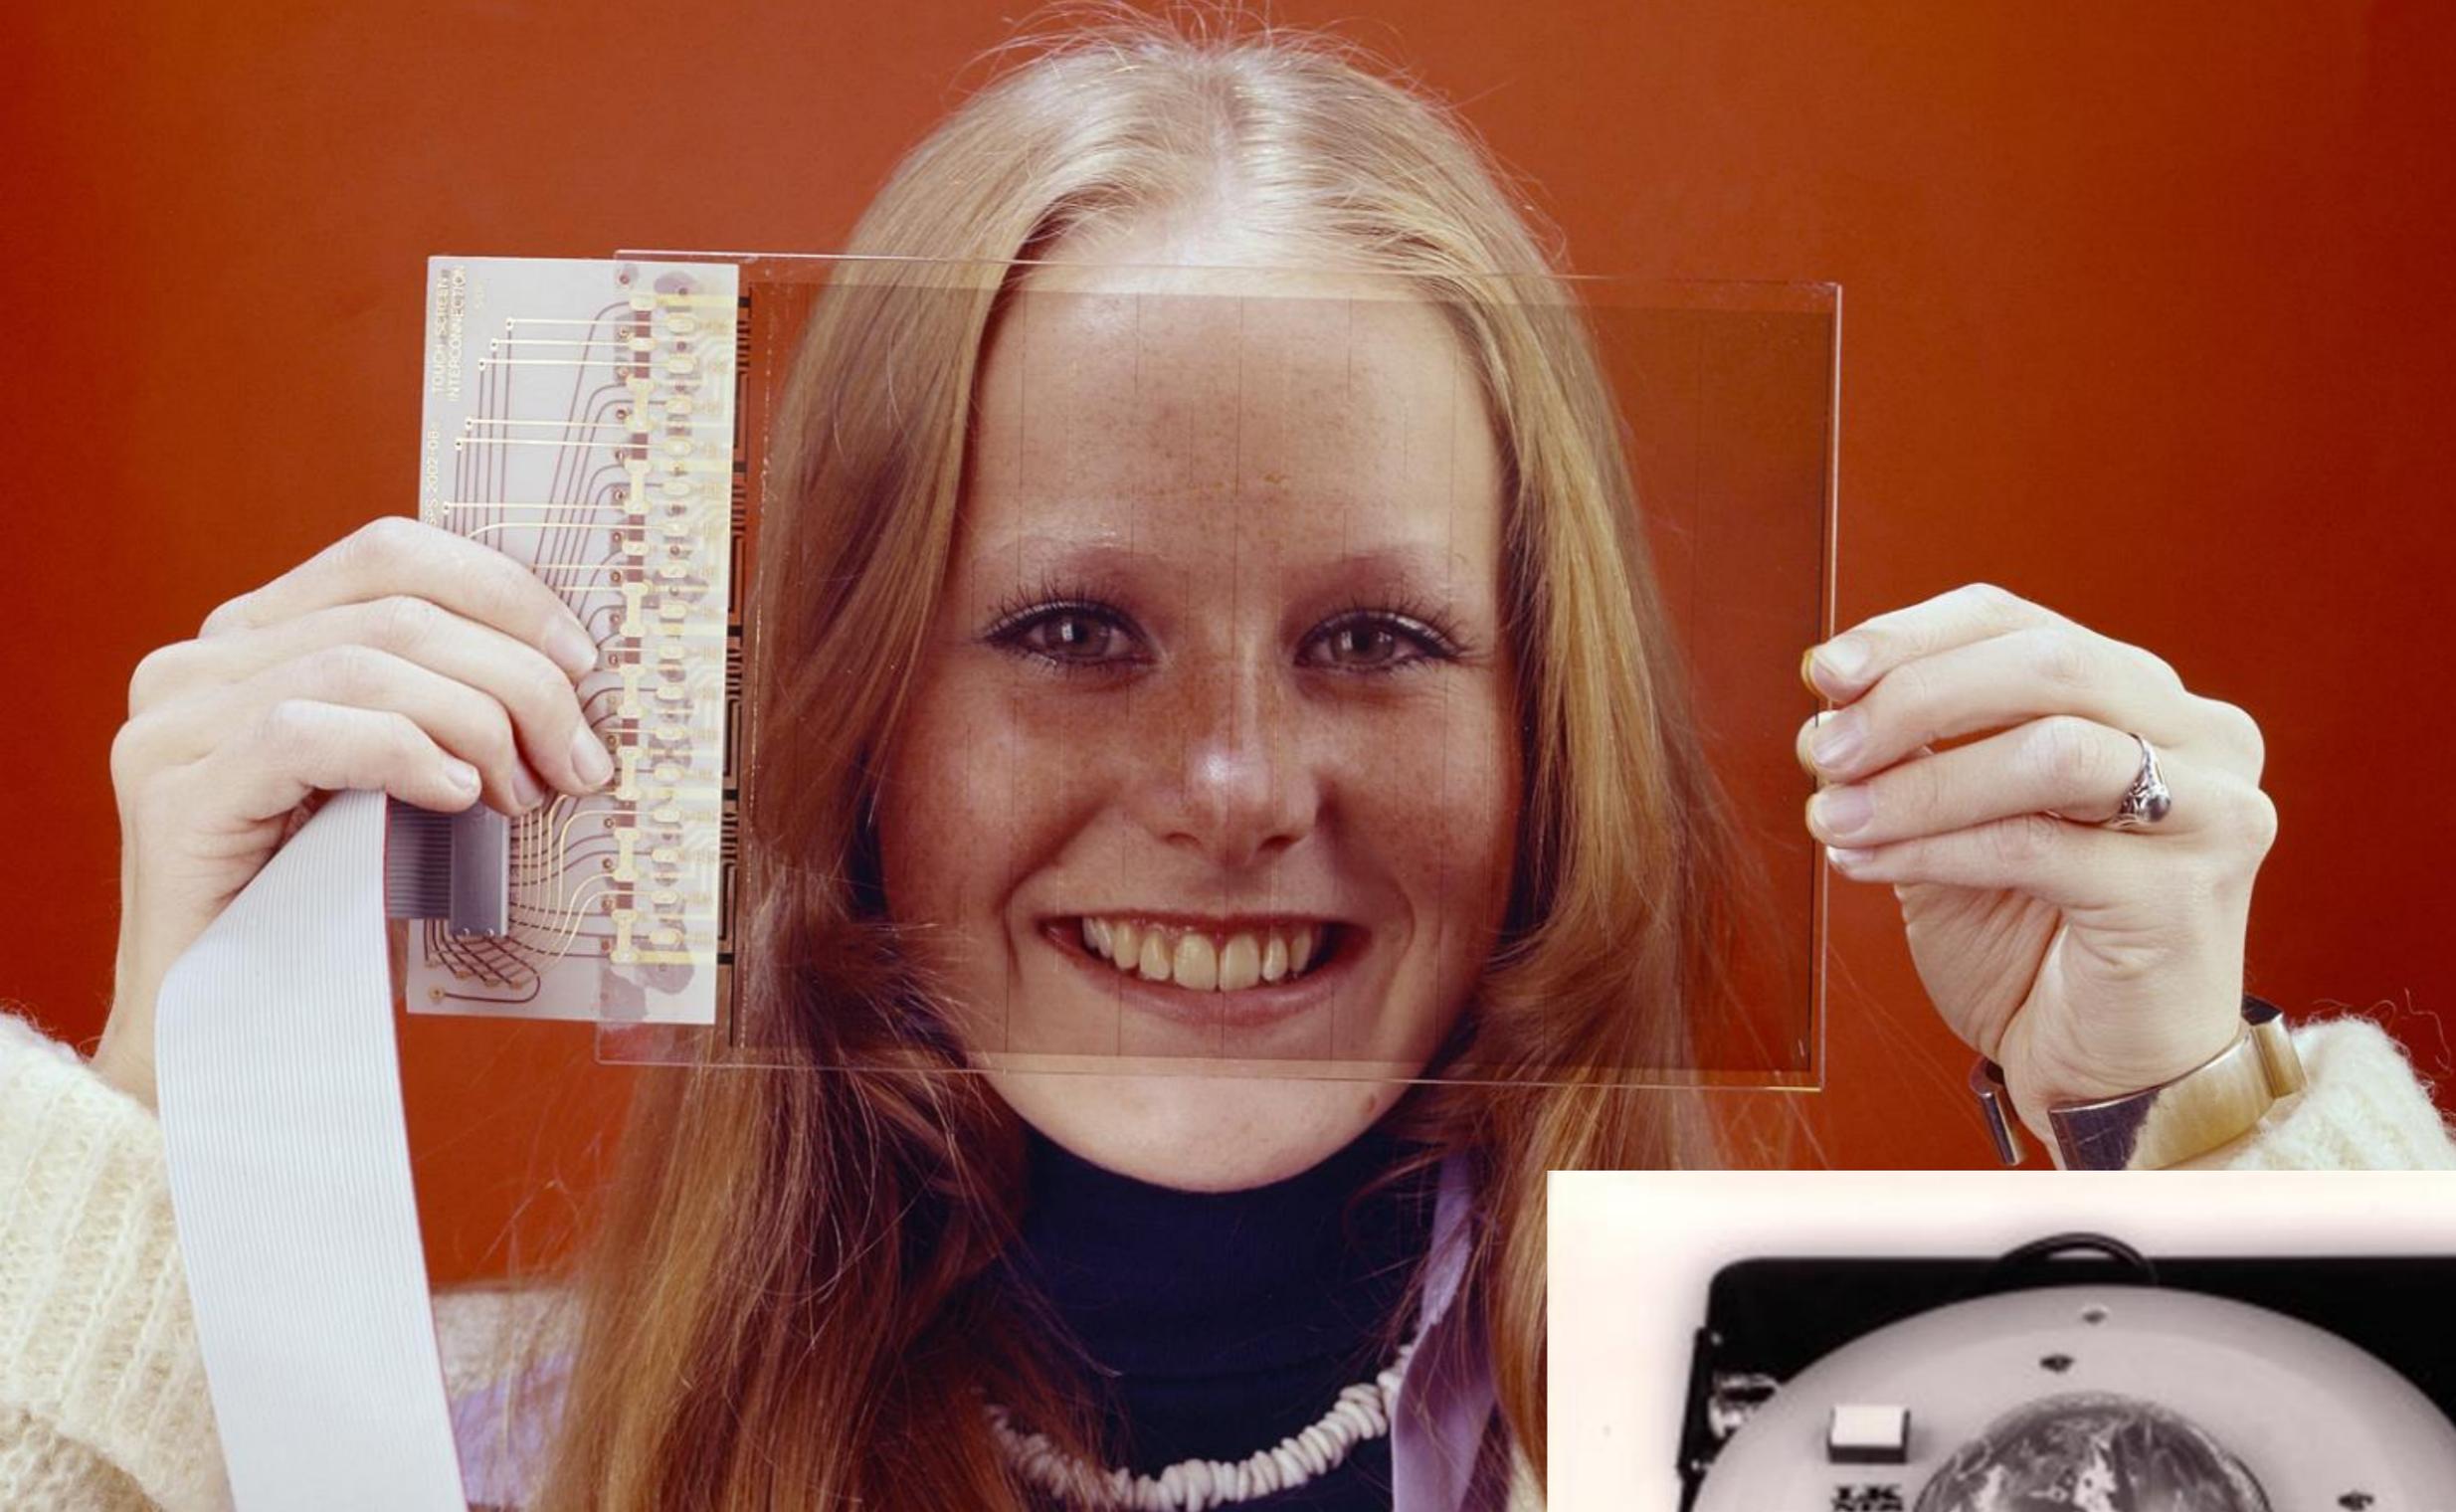

...including those who have done it in the past, and those who are doing it now.
