

Abstract:

The LHC run II has seen hardware changes and performance evolution of the LHC injection system. In this talk, the evolution, over the whole run, of the main systems involved in the injection process is presented. Particular attention is dedicated to the analysis of the data of the injection quality and its evolution over the last years. Finally, a general review of the performances and their reach for run III is discussed.