

Contribution ID: 309

Type: Oral Presentation

Recent Advances on Calorimetry

Thursday 1 August 2019 14:54 (18 minutes)

In HEP experiments, calorimeters play a crucial role for measurements of energy, direction and timing of photons, electrons and jets, as well as missing energies. We report recent developments and interesting R&D efforts for various calorimetry technologies. The challenges presented at future HEP experiments and the research directions for advanced calorimeter technologies are discussed.

Primary authors: RUSACK, Roger (University of Minnesota (US)); APRESYAN, Artur (Fermi National Accelerator Lab. (US)); ZHU, Renyuan (California Institute of Technology (US))

Presenter: RUSACK, Roger (University of Minnesota (US))

Session Classification: Particle Detectors

Track Classification: Particle Detectors