

WELCOME TO MELBOURNE AUSTRALIA

INTERNATIONAL SYMPOSIUM ON LEPTON AND PHOTON INTERACTIONS 2023

OVERVIEW

Thank you for considering Melbourne as the destination to host the International Symposium on Lepton and Photon Interactions in 2023. We are pleased to present the details for our bid and are confident that we can host a successful symposium that will offer great outcomes in a wonderful city.

Melbourne is Australia's knowledge, research and innovation capital. The city's reputation as a highly collaborative community reinforces the message that Melbourne is the right place for the International Symposium on Lepton and Photon Interactions.

The host institution, Monash University's Particle Physics Group, are internationally recognised through their involvement in theoretical studies of high-energy particle collisions and the cosmological study of the history of the Universe, to their involvement in particle physics experiments such as COMET and LHCb.

WHY MELBOURNE?
