Key benefits – Workflow

Include chats into your workflows

The screenshot displays the Nextcloud workflow editor interface. At the top, a blue navigation bar contains icons for home, folders, images, lightning bolt, search, mail, users, and calendar. Below this is a sidebar with menu items: Personal info, Security, Activity, Mobile & desktop, Accessibility, Sharing, Flow (highlighted), and Privacy. The main content area features three workflow cards: 'Automated tagging' (green), 'PDF conversion' (red), and 'Write to conversation' (blue). Each card has an 'Add new flow' button. Below the cards is a section titled 'Your flows' containing a configuration panel for a workflow. The trigger is set to 'When Filecreated' and is followed by an 'and' condition: 'File system tag' is tagged with 'customer-upload'. Below this, there is a search box 'Add a new filter' and a dropdown menu with options: 'Message without mention', 'Mention myself', 'Mention room' (highlighted), and 'Select option'. Christine Scott replies "seconds ago": "Excellent. Now you shared the folder, so it shows up in the project for me 😊". At the bottom, there is a "New message ..." input field. On the right, a panel titled "Project Starfish chat" shows a "Start call" button, "Participants" and "Projects" tabs, and a list of items added to the project: "colors.jpeg", "Project Starfish" folder, "Feature description.md", and "Project Starfish chat".
